PILES TWENTY YEARS.

During the first few days of July Mrs. Valensin and I had a difficulty, which did not concern property matters, or Pio, but was in regard to our relations as husband and wife. One evening was at the table with Mrs. Valensin, Pio and Mesick. I felt very sick. I couldn't eat anything; the matter referred to had so completely prostrated me that my appetite was gone. I was taken San Francisco also, and we immediately bundled up and went to Galt. At the station we found Mr. McCauley, waiting for self-and went into the yard. Pio followed and wanted to know what was the matter I told him I was only a little sick, and for Afterwards I went to my room, where was seized with a most violent vomiting spell. Mrs. Valensin, hearing me, came to room and asked what was the matter told her of my atter prostration and of the troubles causing it. She was very angry, ordered me to get up and act like a nan and not be a baby. She said I was not a man, was no part of a gentleman, and had no sense of honor. I begged of her to leave the room and let me rest in a little

AN EASTERN VIEW. Mr. Zach Montgomery gets small mercy from the New York Times. It declares that he has gained his unfavorable opin ions about the common-school system, not through the perversity, but through the natural shallowness and imbecility of his mind. This conclusion on the part of the Times is drawn from examination of Zach's essays and anathemas upon free schools The Times does not know the man as we in California do, but judges from his recorded tion when it arrives, and I can tell you Southern Hotel at St. Louis. He was in expressions, and its judgment is, therefore, Montgomery's witless conclusions are reached after a very simple fashion. As the Times supported Mr. Cleveland, it can not be said to be prejudiced in this case

Montgomery discovers that there are more common schools and fewer illiterates in the New England States in proportion to the population than in the Southern States. He ciphers on and presently finds that according to the census returns of 1880 "the New England States and, with their two and a half millions of people, 2,459 criminals in prisons, while the Southern States had, with three millions of whites, comparatively unlettered, only 477 in prison, or, no other words, the New England system had one native-born white criminal to every 1,000 and not proportion of the southern States had but one to every 6,500, or six times as many, in proportion of the southern states had but one of every 6,500, or six times as many, in proportions. persons, while the Southern States had but on to every 6,500, or six times as many, in proportion to the population, in New England as it the South." Ascertaining that the census of 188 confirms this startling proof of the criminality of the highly educated New Englanders, Mr Montgomery posits the affirmation that the common school system "is making too large a class of criminals and law-breakers among the rising generation." and that it ought to be proken up ess have suggested itself to a more open and

Funeral of May Pinkham. The funeral services of May T. Pinkham aughter of Dr. and Mrs. Charles E. Pinkham, took place yesterday afternoon at the Congregational Church. The deep public feeling which has pervaded the community concerning the sad and untimely death of the young lady, and the expressions of sympathy for the bereaved family, which have been unremitting since the fatal ocurrence last Saturday, was strongly emphasized by the unusually large attendance at the funeral exercises. The spacious auditorium of the church and the galleries, together with the vestibules, were closely filled, and others were unable to gain admittance. The city was largely represented, and there were many present from Woodland, where the family formerly resided. The portion of the church leading from the center aisle was reserved for and mostly occupied by schoolmates and younger friends of the deceased. The floral decorations were very extensive and exceedingly rare in quality. The teacher and class of the Sacramento Grammar School, of which she was a member, and who were present in a body, gave ex-pression of their remembrance by a floral offering exquisitely made from white flowoffering exquisitely made from white flowers, flecked with maiden-hair fern and gray-tinted blossoms, and with the words "Our Classmate" and "May" wrought in deticate deep blue flowers. The playmates in the neighborhood of her residence contributed an exquisite piece, about three feet in hight, composed of a crescent and star delicator, weaked in white flowers and delicately worked in white flowers and "May" in blue. Accompanying it was a beautifully printed card, with the names of the young friends and the words "Our Darling May; Gone, but not Forgotten."

The Sunday-school class to which she belonged, and the members of which were of white flowers, with sprays of fern, etc., and the words in blue, "Sleep, May." In addition to these, were a very large number of floral designs executed in the best of the lorist's art-work and from the choicest o are white and tinted flowers, maiden-hair erns, sprays, petisporium, etc., and upon nany of which was the name "May," or he initial "M." Among these floral pieces were pillows, anchors, crosses, stars, fans hearts, butterflies, wreaths, sickles, crowns

The less is about $7,500. An incipient fire in Lamory's large hay barn on Main street was checked by passing citizens, who found in it a blazing ba woolen waste. About midnight A. A. Block's winery, on the San Francisco road, was burned. Loss, $1,400. Judge Herrington arrested a disreputable-looking tramp, who was leaving the vicinity of the latter fire in a hurry. Intense excitement prevails among the farmers and others and it would not be safe for Dr. O'Donnel to visit San Jose, as, rightfully or wrong fully, he is claimed as the instigator.

THE SUPPOSED INCENDIARY. SAN JOSE, June 2d.—The man arrested at Santa Clara last night gives his name as James Bee. He says he is a native of St. Louis, Mo., and that he is 36 years old. Near where he was arrested was found a ball of wool soaked in oil, and in his roor on St. John street, in this city, was found a pan containing the same materials, and in bag a quantity of giant powder. He says he came to San Jose eight days ago, which corresponds with the date he hired the room; that he is a laborer, hunting emcooking. He says that to-morrow.

SAFETY COMMITTEES ORGANIZED. SAN JOSE, June 2d .- Coal oil and shavings were found under several buildings at Los Gatos to-day, and the citizens there to night organized a safety committee Speeches were made, in which allusions occurred to the town's convenient and his toric bridge. It is understood that similar organizations have been effected at Milpita and other points. ANOTHER BLAZE.

New Catholic College-A Foul Murder SALE LAKE, June 2d.—The Catholics have secured a lot, and will erect a large college in this city within a year, to cost $20,000. A cowboy rounding up cattle near Sage creek station, on the McKinney stage road, net far from Fort Fetterman, Wyo., saw a human foot in a dark pool of water where the sun was shining. He pulled it to the surface with a pole, and then with his lariat drew it to shore, where to his horror he saw the body of a murdered man, appa-rently about 27 years old, with a bullet hole in the back of the head, and a sand-filled ack weighted the body down. His neck was powder-burned, and it was evident that he was shot at close quarters. The remains are supposed by the clothing to be hose of a soldier. Two citizens were seen with him on the Sunday before, and after wards the two were seen alone, going northward. A party from Brown's Spring started in pursuit, and a Deputy Sherif ruling rates, however, for any pressure of stock would more than likely break values.

BARLEY—Speculative operations impart an unsettled feeling to the sample market. Many holders believe that prices have touched the lowest point, and the desire to sell is less general than it was during the closing days of last week. On Thursday and Friday buyers would not give over $1 15@117½ \(\frac{1}{2} \) et l for the better kinds of Feed, and they were able to satisfy all wants at this range. To-day, however, nothing could be bought below $1.20, while $1.22@1.25 \(\frac{1}{2} \) et l was demanded for anything that partook of choice character. Movement under exciting circumstances is, of course, rather slow. In Brewing character. Movement under executing circumstances is, of course, rather slow.
